

NECA Boston Contractors Attend Advanced Training in Construction Management Workshop

Boston, MA – On July 29 and 30, NECA Boston Chapter members attended a continuing education workshop focused advanced training in construction management at the JATC Greater Boston Electrical Industry Training Center in Dorchester. The course was attended by project management personnel, estimators and foremen of Averill Electric, Bent Electric, Gaston Electrical, John A. Penney Co., Spectrum Integrated Technologies/J&M Brown Co., Sullivan & McLaughlin and T&T Electrical.

Conducted by Wentworth Institute of Technology (WIT) professor Wayne J. DelPico, The Advanced Training in Construction Management covered intricacies of construction documents, plans and specifications, project scheduling, and practical methodologies for managing tight project schedules. The program was developed and customized by WIT in collaboration with NECA to meet the specific needs of NECA contractors.
